

JOHNNY TEST

Character Descriptions

MEET THE MAIN STARS

JOHNNY TEST

Super-exuberant and imaginative 11-year-old Johnny Test has a zest for life and an ambition just one step behind his ability. Not only does he want to drive monster trucks, hit home runs for his baseball team and be the smartest kid in class, but he also wants to walk on the moon, breathe underwater and have his own superpowers. That's where his sisters come in. Johnny's super-genius twin sisters, Susan and Mary, give him the ability to live out his dreams—all they ask in exchange is Johnny's participation in their experiments. Johnny rarely considers the repercussions or side effects of being their guinea pig. Sure, his friendly mutt Dukey will try to warn him, but when Johnny wants something, he doesn't care what it takes to get it!

DUKEY

For his 11th birthday, Johnny wanted a dog, so he picked the smelliest, mangiest and friendliest mutt he could find at the pound, Dukey. Since his prodigy twin sisters, Susan and Mary, hate stupid smelly dogs, they decided to genetically alter the pooch so he could walk, talk and occasionally take a bath. Despite his uniquely human abilities, Dukey's still a dog who sometimes can't deny his natural dog urges. Johnny, Susan and Mary strive to keep Dukey's power to speak a secret for two reasons—Mom and Dad have strictly forbidden any DNA experiments in the house, and Johnny fears if Dukey is found out, he'll lose him.

SUSAN AND MARY TEST

Super-genius prodigy twins but by no means identical, Susan and Mary are the only 13-year-olds in the doctorate program at the Porkbelly Mega Institute of Technology. Yes, they will someday win the Nobel Prize and write the unified theory of the universe, but right now they're more interested in solving the trials and tribulations of adolescence through science and impressing Gil, the super-cute boy next door. As adults, they would be considered mad, but as kids they are merely...curious. Be it a time machine, a brain chip, bionic prosthetics, an advanced weight-loss pill or everlasting lip gloss, the girls always have a bribe or excuse ready for Johnny, and he gives it a go.

HUGH AND LILA TEST (THE PARENTS)

Hugh, a stay-at-home dad who specializes in the art of meatloaf, and Lila, one of the busiest executives ever, are the parents of Johnny, Susan and Mary. Pretty lax in their parenting styles, Mom and Dad have only one mandatory requirement: Every night at 6 p.m. sharp, the whole family sits down for a meal in the dining room and talks about the day. If the girls can't get Johnny changed back from a 300-pound rampaging monster or return him from the future, they'll be grounded and banned from the lab for a week.

CITIZENS OF PORKBELLY, UNITE!

MR. BLACK AND MR. WHITE

Two buff and tough federal agents, Mr. Black and Mr. White work for the SSGA (Super Secret Government Agency). But their big secret is that they realize that Johnny and Dukey, along with the girls, are far more capable of crushing any evil that foists itself on Porkbelly than they are. A quid-pro-quo friendship underlies all the madness, and the six actually have fun together.

GIL

Gil is the all-star jock next-door neighbor. Susan and Mary are soooooooo in love with him that many times they invent stuff simply to get closer to him—although, it always backfires. Gil, who has become somewhat bored being super-popular and handsome, finds Johnny to be pretty cool for an 11-year-old and treats him like his little brother.

THE BAD GUYS (IT'S REALLY ONLY ONE GUY)

EUGENE HAMILTON, AKA BLING-BLING BOY

Susan and Mary are not the only child prodigies of Porkbelly. Eugene Hamilton, aka Bling-Bling Boy, is Porkbelly's resident evil genius who also tinkers in the sciences. Eugene once attended the exclusive Mega Institute with Susan and Mary, but after an "unfortunate incident" that resulted in Professor Slopsink receiving a metal claw for a hand, Bling-Bling Boy was expelled. Eugene will stop at nothing to make Susan his girlfriend, even if that means destroying Porkbelly to do it. Bling-Bling Boy's family is filthy rich, and thus, he can get all the scientific materials he needs for his world-threatening inventions.
